12 Tips For Christian Couples Who Want A Happy Marriage – Part 3

9. Remember that your Spouse is not God.

You can never replace Him or do the things that only He can do. Your spouse cannot fill the God-shaped vacuum in your heart, answer your prayers, meet your spiritual needs, give you the spiritual strength to face the challenges of daily life or open the gates of heaven to you. If you expect your spouse to do any of those things, you are looking in the wrong place and will always be disappointed.

10. Remember that the keys to happiness or depression lie within you, not in the circumstances around you.

Changing your external circumstances such as your house, your job, your dog or even your spouse will never create real and lasting joy. If your answer to discontentment and unhappiness is to change the things around you, you will find that, while you may be happier for a little while, the discontentment always returns. If you are ever going to overcome discontentment, the thing that needs to be changed is the condition of your own heart.

11. Sooner rather than later, sit down with your spouse and figure out who is supposed to do what.

Not defining household duties and then doing them is a cause of innumerable unnecessary arguments and hurt feelings. Remember, regardless of who does it, someone is going to have to do every chore, or the household won't function. This includes cooking and cleaning.

12. Remember, marriage is a marathon, not a sprint.

This race will take you through deep valleys and over high mountains. Marriage is the lifelong union of two sinners living in a fallen world who are daily engaged in spiritual warfare. There are going to be a LOT of unhappy days, sometimes even weeks or months, but if you are ever going to make it to the sunlit uplands, you need to learn to persevere. If you keep giving up when things get hard, you'll never make it out of the valleys. Trust in Christ, and depend upon Him to give you the strength!

God Bless

Bible Study

The Devil's Door - Answers

Here are the answers for last month's bible study...did you get it right?

Isaiah 5:13 Therefore my people are gone into captivity, because they have no knowledge: and their honourable men are famished, and their multitude dried up with thirst.

Under divine law, satan is restricted to the Realm of Darkness unless someone gives him legal access. Opening this door gives the devil control, resulting in theft, destruction, bondage and death.

READ:

John 10:10; 2 Corinthians 2:11

What is the door that opens a life to the influence of satan? It's rebellion or disobedience against God's authority.

There are two kinds of disobedience:

- Adam disobeyed wilfully
- Eve disobeyed when she was deceived

READ:

Romans 5:19; 2 Corinthians 11:3; 1 Timothy 2:14; Matthew 24:24

How did the devil deceive Eve? He distorted God's protective command into a denial of something good.

Greater effort doesn't indicate obedience!

READ:

1 Samuel 15:22-23

Rebellion gives satan a legal right to enter your life and SATAN IS A LEGALIST!

READ:

2 Peter 2:19; Matthew 24:12

Every place you find rebellion, you will find that the Word of God is viewed as too restrictive.

The only cure for rebellion is humble obedience!

READ:

John 14:15; James 4:7
